Drag King Calendar

Welcome to the second annual Drag King calendar! Continuing a tradition begun in 1994, we're pleased to bring you a new lineup of kings fresh for 1995. This year, they're all resident studs of every drag king's favorite city, San Francisco, and all were either contestants of or participants at the First Annual San Francisco Drag King Competition last May. A resounding success, the event attracted a star-studded line-up of transgendered and cross-dressing kings of such caliber it took our collective breath away. The contest's winner, B.J., is featured on the calendar's cover, and our first and second place runners up, Michael and Mack, also make appearances within these pages. Each king has also supplied us with a personally written statement to accompany their portrait. Chloë Atkins, the competition's official photographer, has captured these kings in a compelling composite of images, which we now present to you with much pleasure and pride. Enjoy!

Der, das die: Articles of Clothing for foreign Words. Worn Words. Where does the World end? The Play's the Thing. What happens when Cyborgs do Theory? When Parrots do Theory, Ducks do X. The Freak is a Forest of Holes and Protuberances. Meet me at the Frontier, and We'll take on a Border. Access that One. Fix the Lining. Drop Me in the Stop-bath. Your Slip is showing. What are You wearing under your Words? It's a Meat Thing.

Nicola

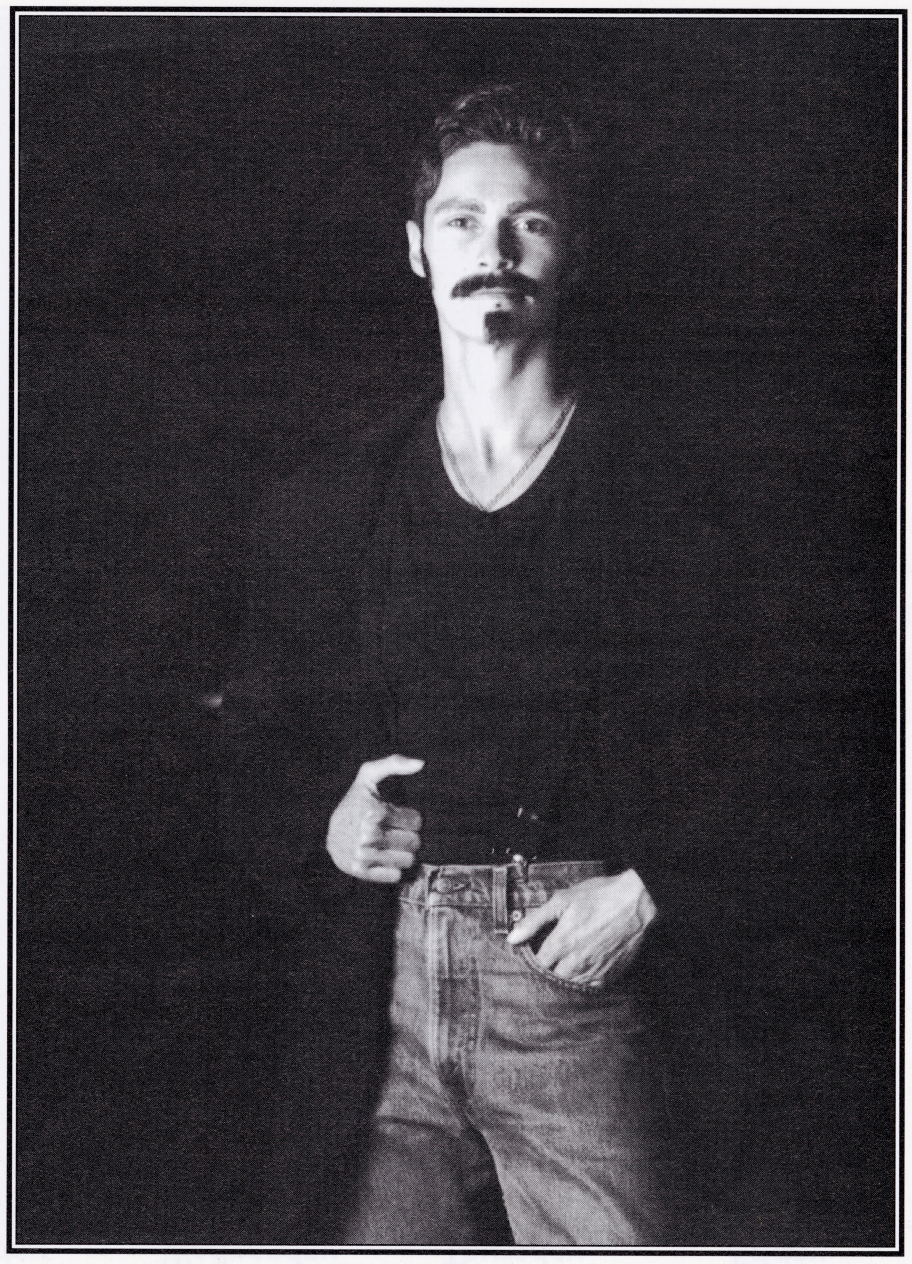

This is my favorite suit. It's silk, so if a girl reaches out to straighten my tie or smooth my lapels, she might keep on touching me. Yeah, sneaky.
