

Dana Rivers

This award winning high school teacher is being called “Unfit for service” by her school board because of her gender change.

Gender is not a crime ...
It's time to end the discrimination

For nearly 50 years the women and men who have changed genders have been discriminated against, fired from jobs, and even brutally victimized. Isn't it time for legislative protection from this kind of harassment?

Changing genders is not a crime

Dana Rivers is currently fighting for her career as a teacher; solely because she is in the process of a gender change. As an award winning, tenured high school teacher, Miss Rivers was placed on administrative leave while her dismissal is pending. When notifying her in August, the school board cited her "unfitness for service" as a transsexual.

"As a gender-different educator, activist, parent, and voter I no longer choose to be marginalized by those few people for whom promote hatred and intolerance. Most of us today are aware of the uniquely American paradox, that being different is indeed a common experience that binds this country together. It's time for each of us to recognize that transgendered people have a right and proper place in our culture."

Transsexualism is a biological condition ...

Transsexuals like Dana Rivers have a proven biological condition. Current medical research indicates that this is a congenital disorder some women and men are simply born with.

Modern medical science can correct this condition and allow these people to live healthy, productive lives.
